

During 2014 we were presented with a file which had been prepared by Sybil Harris a school teacher at Tywardreath School entitled "My Story of the Tywardreath Orchestras". This has been type-set and Par OCS have paid for it to be printed and is now available at £4

Another book which may be printed is the story of the St John's Ambulance Brigade & Nursing Division at Par, this however needs some additional work of illustrations etc.

Also being considered is a revision of the book written by Mrs F M Willis, (a past president / founder member of Par OCS) on "The Story of Roselyon Manor and Its People"

Following on from the successful exhibition we held in July 2014 on the Great War and how it affected our area, the information has been compiled into a book

"St Blazey, Par, Tywardreath Remembered 1914-1928".

This will be £7.50 and should be available for sale in June 2016

Par OCS — Secretary / Recorder's Report

May 2015—April 2016

In September 2015 we received the archives that Evan Maker had built up over the years in his position as Recorder for Par OCS. These are in the process of being catalogued and tidied up, and also digital copies made.

An initial list of our records has been submitted to David Thomas the Federation & County Archivist.

During the year requests for information / photographs have been supplied to various people. Someone wanted to be able to present his grandson with information of his childhood at St Blazey and his connection with the Aberdeen Laundry.

Frank Grigg at Tregrehan is compiling a book on the Cornwall Police Stations, and so we could let him have copies of the station that was on Woodland Avenue, Tywardreath before being converted to regular houses.

The Cornish Music Archive have been supplied with photographs and names of members of the St Blazey Silver Prize Band.

One of the items that Evan Maker had, he stored it under his bed for years, was the glass door panel from the well-known local photographer S Dalby Smith on Station Road, St Blazey as pictured here.

An approach has been made to the trustees of the Cornubia Hall enquiring if they could allocate a position where it could be displayed, details have been made available to their architect, so we await instructions.

A section dedicated to Par OCS has been expanded on the www.tywardreath.org website which gives more space to show the current programme details, programme reports, and can be expanded further.
